FRIDAY, DECEMBER 11, 1903

AN ANOMALOUS POSITION.

The events of the past week have brought into strong relief the oppressive and unreasonable character of some of the laws now standing upon our statute books. It is not our province at this time to discuss the merits or demerits of any particular case now awaiting judicial inquiry. But public discussion is always in order when, under the color and sanction of law, conclusions are reached and acted upon which are subversive of all our ideas of right and justice, and the literal and strict enforcement of which would tend to defeat the very object sought to be attained by the statutory enactment. The most beneficial laws are liable to abuse. Evil-disposed persons will seek to twist them from their natural meaning, making them the vehicles of oppression and wrong, in response to the dictates of their own depravity. This is inevitable, and must continue so as long as human nature remains as it is, with the forces of good and evil each contending for the mastery over human kind. The only bulwark that can be interposed to this menace is that sense of right—that revolt against injustice—that rarely fails to come to the front in the hour of need.

Law is the very essence of right. It is the concentrated wisdom of all the ages as to what is right and just between man and man. Any law the operation of which outrages our innate sense of right may be regarded as unsound. The game laws are just now provoking much adverse comment throughout the state. Every successive legislature tinkers more or less with these laws. The last convocation of lawmakers made some changes the utility of which is hard to understand. A few years ago the law made it a misdemeanor to kill deer at any time—open or closed season—unless the killing was followed by a useful appropriation of the carcass. This was certainly in line with public policy and humane feeling. It discouraged the slaughter of these animals from sheer love of killing. The last legislature, according to the strained interpretation of some, drifted to the opposite extreme. It is made lawful to kill deer, and thereafter a crime to use the meat. The hunter is enjoined by law to leave the animal to rot where it fell, if it happened to be killed during the expiring hours of the open season. He is brought face to face with a choice of evils. He must either violate his individual sense of duty to himself and family by a failure to appropriate the fruit of his labor, or he must run up against the letter of the law by taking the meat into his possession. Under such circumstances, which is the more dutiful course to pursue? Furthermore, the interpretation referred to tends to encourage slaughter during the closed season, because a deer unlawfully killed when the closed season is about to expire, becomes lawfully in the possession of the slayer immediately upon the dawn of the open season. Beyond this, no matter what quantity of venison a man has stored up for the use of his family during the open season, he would be expected, under this literal construction, to cast the whole outfit to the dogs as soon as the closed season arrives, in order to keep within legal limits. Such are some of the anomalies, we might say contradictions, of the literal meaning given to this phase of the law passed this year for the protection of deer.

Amador county comprises 406,000 acres of land. Of this, 105,000 acres is still listed as unclaimed government land. Most of this land is located far up in the mountains, and comprises the forest area of the eastern section. Much of it has at the present time considerable value for timber. There is also a large area adapted for grazing, and some agricultural land in isolated tracts.

The Last Day of School.

[Paper read by Almina Goodman at the last day of school exercises at Franklin district, Dec. 4, 1903.]
The last day of school and vacation—How much pleasure and pain are mingled in those few simple words. The last day of school. To many it may mean the last day of school, but not so to us. We hope to return in the spring to the dear old school-house where so many happy days are spent.

Days when we are joyful,
Days when we are sad,
Days when we are hopeful,
Days when we are sad,
Days when we lose our tempers,
Days when the wind blows cold,
Days when the teacher is good natured,
Days when she can't help but scold.
Cold days, hot days, rainy days, dry days, we are here seeking anxiously the knowledge that can be obtained only by earnest workers with anxious and eager minds.
Then comes the glad vacation, the time that is hailed with pleasure by both teacher and pupils. The time when the teacher rests, and rubs the lines of care from her wrinkled brow. The time when the school-girl seeks the last year's chew of gum and roams the hills free from care. The time when the school-boy trees the squirrel uncollected.

The time when applications are numerous, and the weary trustee wishes the school-marks were banished.
The time when little boys, big boys, tall girls, and short girls alike, see no difference between transitive or intransitive verbs, proper or common nouns, care little for dollars or sense, know the effect but see no cause, care more for fractions than decimals, and care less for fractions than anything else on earth.
School-boys and girls are, as a rule, glad when school opens, and glad when it closes, and who can blame them. Variety is the spice of life.
But there will soon come a time when the last day of school and vacation to us will be no more.
The time when we will be drifted upon wider plains and broader seas. But why borrow trouble. Longfellow says: "Let us not mournfully into the past. It comes not back. Wisely improve the present. It is thine."
So be it with the future.

Then here's to the boy who loves his studies.
And here's to the boy who loves another boy's studies.
When he should be loving his own.
And here's to the girl who works in earnest.
And here's to the girl who works with meekness.
And here's to the girl who works when she has and sees no loss or gain.
And here's to the friends who are with us.
Here's to those who would be with us if they could.
And here's to those who could be with us if they would.
Then, here's to the teachers who are pleasant.
Here's to the ones that we fear.
Here's to the teachers in general.
But "three cheers" for the one that is here.

Mrs. L. M. Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. L. Fuller of Kennedy Heights, arrived from Nome, Alaska, last Thursday, on a visit to her parents. Her husband is engaged in mining operations in that far northern territory. They have three children, one son and two daughters.

Mrs. Allen expects to return to Alaska in the spring.

Dr. Endicott informs us that Fred Beau, who has been laid up for several weeks on account of a fractured skull from the kick of a mule, has recovered his speech. Last Friday the indications of a return of his powers were apparent. He that day began to make himself understood in whispers. On Saturday he was in full possession of his speech, talking almost as well as before his injuries were received. There now little doubt of his complete recovery.

Sunday afternoon four or five boys, having a ride, were seen running well down Matley's hill toward Jackson creek. They were evidently reckless. They reported that their fight had been caused by a man with a shotgun using threatened language, and actually firing in their direction, a charge passing harmlessly over their heads. The threatened man's weapon had been so discharged, possibly, but anyhow the incident was to show the care that hunters ought to exercise in the discharge of arms in the vicinity of a town. On the Sunday the hills are strewn in every direction for miles around Jackson by pedestrians, and hunters cannot be too careful in the handling of weapons.

The Lilliputian Sisters, Sara and Lucy Adams of Oakland, will give one of their entertainments in Love's hall next Tuesday evening for the benefit of the M. E. church. These diminutive but talented young ladies are 46 and 49 inches in height respectively. They are endowed with remarkable vocal powers, which they have cultivated to a high degree. Their elocutionary efforts are also of the highest order, and wherever they have appeared the press has spoken in the most complimentary terms of their entertainments. There is no doubt that a charming and delightful program is in store for those who attend the coming performance, and as the receipts will be devoted to a benevolent end, we will be devoted to a benevolent end, we will be devoted to a benevolent end, we will be devoted to a benevolent end.

Admission 35 cents; reserved seats 45 cents.

Down in Texas at Yoakum, is a big dry goods firm of which Mr. J. M. Haller is the head. Mr. Haller on one of his trips East to buy goods said to a friend who was with him in the palace car, "Here, take of these Little Early Risers upon retiring and you will be up early in the morning feeling good."

W. H. GREENHALGH.

Had No License.

Dr. J. J. Harrison, a chiropractor, whose business is to treat crabs, ingrowing nails and bunions, has been in Jackson for the past week. He collided with the license ordinance of this county which by its express terms imposes a license of $3.50 per month upon anyone practicing medicine. The specialist in this particular line should be singled out by the ordinance as subject to a license tax, and a specialist in other departments of the profession—such as eye, throat, ear doctors, etc.—allowed to play the law without financial penalty, is beyond our comprehension. But so the law reads, and it is the duty of the officers to enforce the ordinance as they are, leaving the courts to pass upon the question of their validity. License collector Norman, who is alert to collect license from everyone liable therefor without fear or favor, tackled the traveling corn healer for a license. The doctor flared up, declaring he would not pay. He has been arrested, and it was an outrage to ask him to pay for the right to earn his living by the disposal of his knowledge in this manner. The ordinance might just as well have provided that every laborer in the mine, the blacksmith, the stage driver—for instance, should pay a license for plying his particular calling. It was discrimination of the most unjust character. He did a whole lot of talking in the streets, and must be admitted, there was a strain of logic in his contention. Tax collector Norman consulted the district attorney on the proposition, and was told by the county's legal advisor that he was liable for the ordinance. The doctor, however, informed that he would have to pay, and was given until the evening of Tuesday to dig up. The evening passed, but he failed to come to time, so the judge ordered him to be taken into custody and paid a fine of $5, and took out a month's license of $3.50 as well.

History of the Frates Case.

Believing that the history of the Frates case, now before the superior court of the county, will be of interest to many of our readers, we have gleaned the following facts in relation thereto.

Frank Frates died October 31, 1903, at Ione, leaving as his sole heirs at law five minor children, the eldest 19 years of age, and the youngest 5 years of age. He left no will, and none of the children were entitled to administer upon the estate of the deceased, because they were minors, and neither were any of the relatives of the deceased entitled, because they were not entitled to inherit any of the personal estate.

On Nov. 5th, W. A. Bennetts of Ione, a close friend of the family, and one of the most reputable citizens of Ione, against whose character and ability not a word can be said, was appointed guardian of the eldest child, upon the nomination of the child, and the written request of their grandmother, with whom the children live, and all of their relatives in Amador county.

Thereafter Bennetts as guardian applied for letters of administration, he having therefor been appointed special administrator. The law expressly provides that a guardian of a minor is a person entitled to letters of administration. After a few days, George Huberty, public administrator, upon opposition petition asking for letters.

The matter was heard Nov. 28, and submitted, and on Tuesday the court appointed Huberty.

On Dec. 9th Fred L. Stewart presented the final account of W. A. Bennetts, as special administrator, and guardian of Frank E. Frates, which were settled and allowed. W. A. Bennetts resigned as guardian, and was discharged. The notice of appeal against the order of the guardian was withdrawn, and all matters in dispute have evidently been settled between the parties. The hearing on the application of Laura K. Mullen for letters of administration, and for the appointment of her husband as guardian of the other minor children, was continued to the 11th inst.

It may be mentioned that the wife of the deceased and mother of the children died about one year ago. At the time of her death there was, and still is, on record in Alameda county, a deed of gift to her from her husband of certain properties in that county; in Monterey county there is also a recorded deed from the seller to her of a lot in Pacific Grove; in the city and county of San Francisco there is a recorded deed to her from the seller of a lot on Lombard street, and also a recorded deed from the seller to her and her husband of a lot on Clayton street.

The records of this county show that after her death judgment was rendered in favor of the wife of the deceased, and the estate of the deceased was divided among the children. The estate of the deceased was divided among the children. The estate of the deceased was divided among the children.

Just before Frates died he had contracted to sell one of the city lots; the buyer applied to the California Title Insurance Co. of San Francisco for an abstract and insurance. The above proceedings were examined, and the company refused to pass the title, on the ground, so we are informed, that the suit was not such a suit as could be brought against an administrator, and that it was, in fact, a suit for the recovery of the subject matter under the state constitution.

Mrs. G. B. Solari and daughter, of Mokelumne Hill, are visiting her mother, Mrs. B. M. Garbarini.

Antone Ratto has about completed the carpenter work of the dwelling house for John Hoskins on the Jackson Gate road. The Yelland house near by is finished. A Massa is contemplating tearing down the old vacant dwelling on Broadway, on the lot adjoining the Spagnoli residence on 40 feet of the north.

He is also thinking of building a hall opposite his premises at Jackson Gate.

Mrs. Mary Buffington came up from Oakland last Thursday on business, and remained until Tuesday. Mr. Buffington, formerly editor of the Ledger, has been quite sick for several weeks. He would have made the trip here had he been able to do so. He was confined to the house for three weeks with sciatica. When Mrs. Buffington left home he had recovered sufficiently to be able to get around the house, but not to undertake any extended trip.

THE DEER CASE.

The Editor of the Ledger is Arrested for Alleged Violation of Game Law.

The much-talked-of case of a deer alleged to have been killed in the vicinity of Ham's station by A. Jones in the expiring days of October, when it was perfectly lawful to take deer, has entered upon another phase. The curious position is taken, under the strained interpretation of the law, that while it was perfectly lawful to kill a male deer up to the last second in October, it was a crime to make any use of the meat after that time. At another time we will discuss the absurdities arising out of such a legal proposition. At present we must be content with a statement of facts growing out of this violent twist of the meaning of the statute, passed by the last legislature. The local game association took up the matter from a little item which appeared in the columns of the Ledger, which intimated that meat supposed to be venison had been received by the Ledger office. A trip to the residence of A. Jones was made by C. B. Ardittio, the local game warden, and O. H. Reichling, secretary of the local game association here, on Sunday, Nov. 29. Another meeting of the association was called one day last week, to hear the report of these investigators. What they found on the Jones place, which is about a mile west of Pine Grove, will develop at the judicial inquiry on the criminal charge. It would be out of place to enter upon this question now. It may be stated, however, that the decision was simply rendered, and the decision reached was to press the matter no further. A simple mistake had been made. The explanation was deemed so satisfactory that no good motive would justify further proceedings from the standpoint of these parties.

It is now claimed that what occurred since was entirely at the instance of the state game commissioners; that no suggestion or request was sent from Jackson to the authorities below to go any further. Let those who can accept this statement; we cannot. Every thing tends to show that the movement from first to last has been entered upon from ulterior motives.

On Wednesday evening of last week L. N. Kercheval, a field deputy at large, under the state board of fish commissioners, at a salary of $1200 per year, arrived in Jackson, attracted hither, so it is said, solely by the magnetic influence of the Ledger office. He conferred to the Editor, and the Editor referred to the O. H. Reichling, who swore to separate complaints before H. Goldner, justice of the peace, charging A. Jones and Richard Webb with misdemeanor in violating the game law.

The complaint alleges that said defendant did on or about the 20th day of November, 1903, in the county of Amador, committed the crime of misdemeanor, to wit: Possession of deer meat in the closed season; that the said Richard Webb, at the time and place aforesaid, did wilfully and unlawfully have in his possession certain deer meat between the first day of November and the 15th day of July of the following year, to wit, or about the 20th day of November, 1903.

Armed with warrants of arrest the state official started up the road in a buggy, in company with C. B. Ardittio, who went along merely to show the way and in the afternoon arrested Alonzo Jones at his ranch, and brought him to Jackson, reaching here about dark. It was calculated that Jones would plead guilty. He is a hard-working man, with a wife and family of six children dependent upon his labor, and could ill afford to be put to expense. If he stood trial he would be compelled to hire a lawyer, and the easiest way out of it was to plead guilty.

But he did see it that way, and instead of pleading guilty, he pleaded not guilty. The purchase includes the entire ranch, except the homestead occupied by Mrs. Fleming, and also includes the right to extract mineral from underneath the surface of that tract. The price paid was not learned. Current rumor places it at big figures, $30,000 being named. We are in a position to state that this is far beyond the truth. The intention of the purchasers is to combine the Fleming and Eudey ranches, embracing a large tract of land along the east or Zella side, and organize a mining company to operate the same. It will take some time to make the necessary arrangements. Active work will not be likely before six months work.

It is good news, however, for the people of Jackson that this portion of the lode line is to be prospected, with sufficient capital behind the movement to thoroughly explore what is regarded as a very promising territory.

South Eureka Situation Unchanged.

The strike at the South Eureka mine, declared by the Miners' Union of Sutter Creek, is still unsettled. No material change has occurred in the situation since our last issue. The miners would like to return to work, but the mine owners are just as anxious that they should resume work. So there is no disagreement on that score. But the fact remains that they are not applying for work; in the absence of any action by the union calling the strike off, there must seem to be no longer any demand from the union that the three men originally discharged, or either of them, be taken back. This condition, insisted upon in the first place, has been abandoned. The striking point now is the men's barring those out for cause—wanting the company to take them back in a body. This Superintendent Moore refuses to do. Their places are open for them, if they apply for work individually; but collectively they are not to be taken back.

The mine is being kept free from water. The company is not inclined to abandon the property as the case now stands. The intention is to resume work. Men will be put on whether they belong to the union or not. The effort to start in face of the declared strike is where the trouble is likely to assume an acute form. And therein lies the danger that other miners along the lode may be drawn into the struggle. The situation, therefore, may still be said to be critical. Around Jackson the feeling is strongly against any further clash between miners and the mine owners. The union held this week it was expected that some action would be taken to declare the strike off. As far as we can learn, however, no definite steps to that end were taken.

MINING NOTES.

DEFENDER.—A report was current last week that this mine had been sold for $60,000. We understand, however, that the report was premature. No sale has been consummated as yet. Parties have been negotiating with the owners concerning the property, and the negotiations are still pending, but nothing decisive has been done so far. The mine is considered a very nice little proposition. It has paid right from the start. The prospects are very favorable for its continuance in the dividend paying columns. The ledge is extensive in the lowest level, and every indication is that the ore body will be just as good at greater depths.

SAND PILE MINE.—Operations at the Sand Pile mine near Forest Home, had to be suspended last Thursday, owing to the breaking down of the gasoline engine that furnishes the power to hoist the sand to the tanks. D. Fricot, the owner, went to the city to purchase another engine, and operations are expected to be resumed in a few days. It is reported that the results so far exceed the expectations of those who have invested in the enterprise. It is the only large plant for the extraction of gold by the cyanide process in the county. The average daily treatment of the auriferous sands is 240 tons. It is said that the yield is 80 to 90 per cent of the assay value. The pile of tailings from the Plymouth mills cover several acres, and hold about $1 per ton in gold. If one half of this can be recovered, the promoters would be able to make a handsome profit. So that if the clean-up reaches 75 per cent, the promoters are on the road to making a big fortune out of this venture.

RHETTA.—This property is situated beyond Plymouth, and is commonly known as the Bay State. A few days ago, we are told, the drift cast from the 1050 level encountered the ledge at a distance of 50 feet from the shaft. Its quality was not learned. The main ore body is believed to be west, and a crosscut to tap this will be pushed ahead with all possible speed.

MINING PROPERTY SOLD.—This week Fred Eudey and Alex Eudey purchased the property of Mrs. Kate Fleming, adjoining the Zella mine on the north. The purchase includes the entire ranch, except the homestead occupied by Mrs. Fleming, and also includes the right to extract mineral from underneath the surface of that tract. The price paid was not learned. Current rumor places it at big figures, $30,000 being named. We are in a position to state that this is far beyond the truth. The intention of the purchasers is to combine the Fleming and Eudey ranches, embracing a large tract of land along the east or Zella side, and organize a mining company to operate the same. It will take some time to make the necessary arrangements. Active work will not be likely before six months work.

It is good news, however, for the people of Jackson that this portion of the lode line is to be prospected, with sufficient capital behind the movement to thoroughly explore what is regarded as a very promising territory.
